Chapala Restaurante Mexicano is located directly north of the Saint Paul School of Theology at 5225 E. Truman Road, (between Van Brunt & Hardesty) in KCMO. A client of mine turned me onto this joint about eight years ago. Chapala is named for the owner, Martha Araseli's, home town of Laguna de Chapala, located southeast of Guadalajara, Jalisco, in the southwest Pacific area of Mexico. It's a clean and comfortable restaurant with great food. Chapala's has "Americanized" and "Authentica" Mexican.

I recommend going Authentica Mexicana here. I like the Mexican Tacos with marinated chipped steak (Carne Asada). "Mexican" tacos mean you get onions and cilantro on top of the steak on a flat corn tortilla. I recently tried the "American" tacos with ground beef, lettuce and cheese in place of the onion and cilantro.....Good but you can have them anywhere. Chapala's has a great HOT sauce. It will light you up. Mix it with the mild. Great food in a location seldom considered by the masses ...Check it out!

I'm a proponent of patronizing locally owned businesses. Supporting this establishment or one of the many other Kansas City owned and operated businesses, is a great way to boost our local economy.
