Lou Lou's is located in Kansas City, Kansas' Fairfax Industrial District at 1315 Fairfax Trafficway. It's in a tiny little building set toward the street in front of Union Pacific's 1930's era industrial warehouse complex. The black, white, grey & red interior is crisp and clean with 10 stools and "diner" counter bars. You can see the entire little joint from the vantage point of one stool. This place has a comfortable feel with family pictures adorning the limited wall space.

Run by a delightful woman and her two daughters, Lou Lou's serves home cooked food for breakfast and lunch. Your options for lunch are the day's special or made to order sandwich with chips. I get the daily special. Recently I had chicken noodles with mashed potatoes and gravy accompanied by a roll. I've had the Goulash a couple of times. It's great. It comes with bread & butter. Grab a stool in front of the picture window. Enjoy the meal and banter with your dining neighbors while the endless stream of trucks pass on Fairfax Trafficway.

I'm a proponent of patronizing locally owned businesses. Supporting this establishment or one of the many other Kansas City owned and operated businesses, is a great way to boost our local economy.
