Located at 1405 W. 39th Street, Drunken Worm is in the midst of the many 39th Street shops, bars and restaurants. The space is small with mostly high-top seating. The interior feels like you're in someone's basement. It's dimly lit with kitsch Mexican Day of the Dead decor peppered throughout with plenty of TV's playing sports programs. We've been for breakfast and lunch and have always had good meals and really attentive service. They feature a huge assortment of Tequilas. I've yet to make it in the evening though I hear it's a fun bar.

The first meal I had here was the fish tacos. They're really well done. Most recently my dining companion enjoyed Huevos Rancheros. They're served with black beans, salsa, cilantro and she got Jalapeno cheddar bits on the side. I enjoyed their unique Corn Beef & Hash. It's served with hash browns, red onion, poblano pepper, two eggs with queso fresco and cilantro. Very tasty...Check it out!

Buy Local! I'm a proponent of patronizing locally owned businesses.

Supporting Kansas City owned and operated businesses is a great way to support our local economy.
