Novel's acclaimed chef Ryan Brazeal and his wife, acclaimed pastry chef Jessica Armstrong, have a beautiful, relatively new restaurant at 1927 McGee in Kansas City's East Crossroads Art District. The kitchen is open to the dining area so you can see what a tight machine they run. The employees are poised and professional. We sat right across from the kitchen on our most recent visit and were impressed that despite the packed restaurant and the open kitchen, we could still have conversation without having to raise our voices. The interior design was really well thought out.

Novel was recently named the most romantic restaurant in Kansas City so we had to go for Valentine's Day dinner before the ballet. I had the rich duck breast and crazy good mashed potatoes. Nicole had rice noodles and bok choy. Her mother visiting from out of town had perfectly prepared salmon and savory sautéed mushrooms. And of course we all shared. Kansas City Ballet's production of Lady of the Camellias was brilliant. Check them both out...www.novelkc.com & www.kcballet.org

Buy Local! I'm a proponent of patronizing locally owned businesses.

Supporting Kansas City owned and operated businesses is a great way to support our local economy.
